Civil Defense May Require a Holiday in Hope

Threat Made by Defense Council as Enrollment Reaches Only 432

If local citizens fail to complete their voluntary enrollment for Civil Defense by the end of this week the County Defense Council may be forced to call on local government to declare a half-holiday one day next week and get the organization completed, Talbot Field, Jr., chairman, announced Wednesday.

Pointing out that the Army advisors say 3,000 workers will be required to man Hempstead county's Civilian Defense organization, Mr. Field observed that only a little more than 10 per cent of the requirement has been met by enrollments thus far. Actually it is less than that, he said, because it usually takes at least two enrollments to produce one qualified worker, which would put the required registration total at 6,000.

A "showdown" looms next week because, Mr. Field said, the training of Civilian Defense workers—all the way from air wardens to firemen and other emergency personnel—can not be started until the enrollment list is many times larger than today.

Appeal is made to the public to register at once at Civilian Defense headquarters in Hope city hall, first floor on the right when entering from the south side of the building (opposite Hotel Barlow). Clerks will be on duty from early morning to 11 p.m. every night, and through the noon and supper hours.

Mr. Field pointed out that this is a voluntary movement, both as to signing up now and as to serving later on. But the organization is required to be formed—and if voluntary methods fail a compulsory half-holiday may be resorted to next week, he added.

Roosevelt Hits Rumor-Mongers

Washington Greatest Source of Lies, He Declares

WASHINGTON —(P)—President Roosevelt remarked Tuesday that Washington was a rumor factory, the source of more lies than any other place in the country, and referred to it as "Cliveden set here."

When reporters mentioned reports that Secretary Knox had not disclosed the full losses at Pearl Harbor, Mr. Roosevelt said the reports could be best characterized by the word "rumor" and he spelled it out to make it emphatic.

He mentioned the Cliveden set when a reporter said there had been criticism of another loan to Russia on the theory the Soviet Union should not be made too powerful in the post-war period.

That argument, the president replied, is about on a par with others offered by the Cliveden set in Washington. He would not make a better identification, he said, because he was being a little polite.

He so-called "Cliveden set" in English.

American Cities
Almost one-half of the population in the United States now lives in cities. Pavement-pounding and strap-hangers should find these questions easy.

1. Name the Crescent City, Mound City, Twin Cities and Gateway to Alaska.

2. In what states are three of the four Springfield with more than 50,000 inhabitants?

3. What great catastrophes are associated with Chicago, San Francisco and Johnstown, Pa.?

4. What municipality calls itself the biggest little city in the world?

5. What famous city in California is not a city?

Big Jap Drive Against Bataan Is Indicated

Air, Land Activity Increases; U. S. Planes Sink 2 Ships, 2 Barges

WASHINGTON —(P)—The start of the long expected assault in force against General Douglas MacArthur's line in Bataan Peninsula was indicated by the War Department communiqué reporting increased enemy air activity and much heavier Japanese artillery fire, and the landing of Japanese reinforcements at Olongapo, in Subic Bay, just north of Bataan.

At the same time the department reported that four-motored army bombers attacking Japanese ships off Borneo, scored direct hits on two enemy transports, one large and one small, both of which were believed sunk.

Two enemy barges also were destroyed with no damage to American planes.

Now the world is in the course of a tremendous upheaval. New powers and forces are seeking to dominate it, displacing those which have dominated it in the past.

We still crouch back in our corner and ask in quavering voice, "Are we fighting to insure that the British Empire shall rule the world? Will Russia dominate the world?"

WILEMSTEAD, Dutch West Indies —(P)—Submarines appeared off the coast of Aruba Wednesday but were driven off by U. S. bombing planes, Aneta agency announced.

The submarines were sighted both from land and sea watching posts, alert to prevent any repetition of last Monday when three tankers were sunk just off Aruba and oil installations shelled. Soon after the bombers appeared the subs dived making it impossible for the planes to attack them.

British Said Reinforcing in Middle East

Believed Getting Ready for Expected Nazi Spring Offensive

By the Associated Press
A hint that Britain may be heavily reinforcing her armies in the Middle East, possibly to combat a German thrust into Turkey this spring, was dropped by the London Admiralty Wednesday with disclosure that "certain" convoys had been safely escorted through the Mediterranean.

The Admiralty said the operation was carried out between February 13 and 16 with the loss of only two merchantcraft.

"The enemy made great efforts to inflict serious losses and published the usual exaggerated claims," the admiralty said.

The point of reinforcements were not specified.

An Italian communiqué asserted Monday that a British destroyer and seven Italian destroyers had been sunk from a big convoy enroute from Alexandria, Egypt to the bomb-battered island base of Malta, about midway between the toe of the Italian boot and Libya, in North Africa.

On Saturday a German communiqué said Nazi planes sank a British destroyer and a 10,000-ton merchantman in a convoy north of Tobruk.

Recent dispatches from the Balkans have told of large numbers of German troops massing in Bulgaria, Greece and Greek islands—all potential springboards for a German invasion of Turkey, the land bridge between Europe and the Middle East.

Malta, under increasingly attacks by air, would be a short thorn on the flank to Turkey or across the Mediterranean to Egypt and the Levant states.

While the Mediterranean stirred with new activity bolstering forecasts that the Middle East would soon become a major theater of the worldwide conflict, the spring Russian armistice surged deep into the German winter lines.

A Stockholm dispatch reported that the Soviet army corps, aided by several divisions of Polish troops, advanced within 50 miles of Old Poland, in a drive into the republic of White Russia. In Africa British mobile columns pushed deeper into the desert west of Tobruk without encountering Axis opposition.

Jap Control in Indies Would Squeeze Allies Out of Far Eastern Oil Areas

If the Japanese succeed in seizing control of the Dutch East Indies, Australia would have to be the main base of Allied operations against the foe. The map above graphically shows the long, perilous routes over which oil would have to be transported to Australia, which has none of its own.

Case Tractor in 50th Year

Anniversary Celebrated Here by McRae Implement Co.

The 50th anniversary of the invention of the J. I. Case tractor is being celebrated this week by McRae Implement company, distributors of Case tractors and implements, at their local store, Fifth and Louisiana streets, on the Frisco tracks.

The year 1942 commemorates the Golden Year in Farm Power. In 1892—fifty years ago—the first gas tractor rolled off the assembly floor of the J. I. Case plant in Racine, Wisconsin, and went out under its own power for actual work on a farm, just a few miles away.

Closely associated with this epic development in Farm Power is a prominent man in the farm machinery industry—Mr. David Pryce Davies, who started his career at the age of 16 as a machinist apprentice and helped build the first Case gas tractor when he was only 22. He is now consulting engineer for all factories of that company.

His experience with various kinds of internal combustion engines, his invention of blast furnace waste-gas engines, still used today in steel mills throughout the country, are among his many achievements.

Designed under his leadership, successors to this first tractor have won prizes at the world's most important tractor tests—a sweeping victory in the famous Winnipig motor contests of 1912 by scoring the highest number of points for design and construction, and in 1913, gold medals for design, construction, performance, economy of operation and work done.

Many prizes have also been won in such far-away countries as Spain, Egypt, Brazil, England and Argentina.

In February of last year, Mr. Davies was highly honored by being one of the few men in his field to be presented the Modern Pioneer Award by the National Association of Manufacturers.

Navy Photo Owners, Call at The Star

Owners of the photographs of Navy men in this county which The Star published last November and December are kindly asked to call at the newspaper office, 212-14 South Walnut street, and obtain the pictures as soon as possible. Those unable to call will have the pictures returned to them by mail, although there is less danger of creasing when pictures are handled personally.

Tanker Damaged Off Atlantic

Navy Announcement Gives Little Information

WASHINGTON —(P)—The Navy Department announced Wednesday that the tanker E. H. Blum "was damaged" off the Atlantic coast Monday, February 16. The Navy gave no information as to how the damage was inflicted.

The brief announcement said: "The Navy announces that the tanker E. H. Blum, owned by the Atlantic Refining company, was damaged off the Atlantic coast on Monday, February 16, 1942."

(The E. H. Blum was built within 6 months at a cost of 4 million dollars and with a sister ship is the largest all-welded tanker ever built. She had a speed of 13 knots with a capacity of 154,000 barrels of oil. She was launched last March 15.)

Stewart Wins City Election

Defeats Spears by Unofficial Count of 212 to 148

On an unofficial count Edwin H. Stewart was elected alderman of Ward 3 of Hope Tuesday, over Ross Spears, incumbent, by a vote of 212 to 148.

This was perhaps the lightest vote in history. Other candidates were without opposition.

Officers without opposition included City Attorney E. F. McFaddin, City Clerk, T. R. Billingsley, Aldermen, Ward 1, E. W. White, Ward 2, Jessie Brown, Ward 4, Dale Jones.

The vote by wards:

Ward	Stewart	Spears
Ward 1	83	57
Ward 2	51	37
Ward 3	63	33
Ward 4	15	21
Total	212	148

Dutch Appeal for Allies to Take Offensive

Chinese Reported Invading Thailand; U. S. Planes Active

By the Associated Press
An eye witness account of fighting in lower Sumatra reported Wednesday that fierce fighting native soldiers of the Dutch Indies, armed with only pistols and swords, were inflicting heavy casualties on the Japanese and proving more than a match for the invaders, armed with sub-machine guns in bloody hand-to-hand fighting.

Defenders were reported to be battling desperately to block the Japanese drive toward Sunda Strait. The native warriors fought with their Kiewangs—swords like the Malay Kris or the Philippine Bolo—in their right and pistols in their left hands.

By the Associated Press
With the "zero hour" near in the battle for Java Lt. Governor Huibertus Van Mook of the Dutch East Indies appealed to the United Nations Wednesday to take the offensive search out the enemy and fight or risk losing the war.

Even as he spoke the all-India radio broadcast an unconfirmed report that Chinese troops had invaded Japanese-dominated Thailand, striking the first land counter blow by the United Nations since the war began December 7.

Thailand is the major jumping off point for the Japanese invasion of Malaysia and Burma.

The all-India broadcast said that according to a report, as yet unconfirmed, Chinese troops on the north Burma front had crossed the Thailand border "and were battling" toward Chiangmai, 300 miles north of Bangkok, the Thai capital.

"The Japanese are using ships recklessly and I think we could emanate them," said the Dutch official arriving in Sydney Australia, arriving from the U. S.

To Fight to End
"We'll fight in the Indies as long as humanly possible," he said, but warned that a policy of retreating to prepared positions could lead to the position in which the allies might lose the war.

Japanese invasion hordes still held off from a direct assault on Java, densely populated heart of the Indies, four days after striking into nearby lower Sumatra with parachute troops and seaborne reinforcements.

Taking the initiative American fighter and bombing planes kept the invaders at bay.

United Nations headquarters said American pilots aiding in the defense of Java attacked a Japanese-held airfield in lower Sumatra and shot down four enemy planes without a loss to themselves. Dutch bombers shot down two more.

Five Japanese bombers were shot down in an attack on a naval base at Soerabaja, Java, Wednesday morning, it was announced.

Jap Vessels Bombed
Combined American and Dutch bomber forces sank a large Japanese transport scored direct hits on two others and rained havoc on a fleet of troop barges.

NEI headquarters said Dutch troops were fighting grimly against Japanese in Borneo but acknowledged that the "fighting has almost come to an end on the Japanese over-run Minahasa Peninsula in northeast Celebes Island."

With the Far Pacific conflict headed into a most critical phase the war came closer to America with President Roosevelt's warning that United States cities could be attacked and canal dispatches told of a possible secret U-boat base in the Caribbean sea.

"Under certain conditions," Roosevelt said, "the Axis could shell New York city and bomb as far inland as Detroit and attack Alaska."

"American air and naval strength couldn't prevent such an assault," he said.

In Burma Domes said Japanese troops had crossed the strategic Bilin River where imperial British defenders two days ago took up new positions and continued to advance.

In Tokyo Japanese Premier Gen. Hideki Tojo sounded a note of caution to a mass meeting celebrating the fall of Singapore.

"The war has only just begun. We Japanese must continue our efforts together with Germany and Italy until the fates of the Axis are brought to their knees," he declared.

Domes said Japanese troops who crossed the Bilin river in Burma were now hotly pursuing the enemy toward Rangoon, capital of Burma.

Court Raises SPG Land Price

Additional Facts on Mrs. Nora Carrigan's Suit

Although the facts set forth in yesterday's news report of the verdict in the case of Mrs. Nora Carrigan against the federal government in U. S. district court at Texarkana regarding land in the southwestern flowing ground reservation were correct, T. S. McDavitt, manager of the Carrigan land, told The Star Wednesday that the following facts in all fairness should have been stated also:

"On the tract of land containing 433 acres, the government appraised the land and improvements at $7,376, and that is the offer they made for this tract. The verdict of the jury on this tract was $11,000, which is $3,624 more than they offered to settle for on this tract.

"On the tract of land containing 66 acres, the government appraised the land and improvements at $1,600, and that is the offer they made for this tract. The jury's verdict on this tract was $2,400, which is $800 more than the government's offer for this tract."

What has always seemed to be a lamentable characteristic of American farming is the appalling waste in the manner in which our farmers care for their products after so much time and labor has been expended in producing them.

Cheap land and labor in the early days caused the American farmers to develop many wasteful habits which in many cases are practiced today with the same indifference as that of the farmer of fifty years ago.

In late years, however, it has become necessary for the farmer to adopt business-like practices in order to prosper. County farm agents, state agricultural colleges and our national department of agriculture have tirelessly urged crop rotation and diversification, balanced feeding and better care of livestock and many

Prescott Garden Club Held Meeting Tuesday

Prescott Garden Club met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. T. J. Compton on the Ruston Road. Assistant hostesses were Mrs. Roy Duke, Mrs. Owen Waters, Mrs. Dallas Atkins, Mrs. A. B. Gordon.

During the business session a letter was read from Mrs. Joseph H. Brewer, president of the National Council of Garden Clubs, who asked cooperation with the National Victory Garden Campaign.

The afternoon program topic "Garden Soils" was presented by Mrs. Chas. H. Hesterly substituting for Mrs. Chas. C. Thomas. She classified Arkansas soil with respect to texture, fertility and reaction, and illustrated her discussion with an attractive victory garden poster. In her efficient manner, Mrs. T. C. McRae Jr. talked on "Gardens, Women and Defense" emphasizing victory gardens as a means of participating in the civilian defense program.

In a clever defense garden contest, Victory Pin prizes were awarded to Mrs. E. P. J. Garrett and Mrs. John N. Hubbard.

On the tea table an attractive arrangement of red roses and white carnations, flanked by blue candles in crystal holders, carried out the patriotic motif which was further stressed in dainty refreshments. Early spring flowers in 8 artistic arrangements were exhibited and the travel vase was awarded to Mrs. Gus McCaskill.

McDaniel, AP Writer at Singapore, Lost

NEW YORK —(AP)—The New York Times in a dispatch from its correspondent at Batavia, NEI, said Tuesday that C. Yates McDaniel, Associated Press foreign correspondent, was among those missing who had boarded boats at Singapore last week.

The last message received by the Associated Press from McDaniel was sent from Singapore at 3:45 p. m. local time, or 3:45 a. m. Central war time, last Thursday. At that time McDaniel was aboard a ship in Singapore harbor awaiting clearance.

Final Report

Hope, Arkansas, signed by R. P. Bowen, chairman, and C. M. Walker, treasurer, and bearing the notation that it is the war fund remittance.

I am very happy to send this check, because it exceeds our quota. In the last war I was in the armed service, and do not know personally, but was advised: that Hempstead county went over the top in every war effort drive. This $50,000,000 drive of the American Red Cross in 1942 is the first drive we have had in this county for the county war, and I am happy thereby keeping alive the records and tradition of this county.

We raised our quota by the most democratic method that I have ever known. Every person was asked to give one-half of one day's pay. It thrilled me to see everybody from the negro at the brick plant to United States Senator Lloyd Spencer, the president of the First National Bank of this city, giving one-half of one day's pay. It was a uniform drive, in that everybody gave uniformly one-half of one day's pay.

The drive was not pushed like it should have been, because I was out of town a great portion of the time. I believe that if we had put on the drive systematically and pushed it through, we would have gotten much more. As a matter of fact, we will have one or two hundred dollars more to send you in a short time. You know, there are always some clean-ups.

Now Mr. Baxter, the boost of the Red Cross has been that it is always prepared for every emergency; and I want to take this occasion to ask you to see that the materials come forward immediately for the first aid courses and the sewing room in this county. Civilian morale can be helped more in this county by the opening of the first aid classes and the sewing room than by any other thing that can happen. Mr. Bowen tells me that Dr. Martindale cannot open his first aid courses because the books and literature are not here from your office. Mrs. Agee tells me that the sewing room and Red Cross room cannot be put into full force until you send the materials. Surely you will personally see that this is done immediately, because I have been saying all over Arkansas that the Red Cross was always prepared for every emergency; and you certainly are prepared for the emergency of starting the first aid course and the Red Cross sewing room here. Now we have gone over the top. Send us the books for the first aid course, and all the materials for the sewing room. I await your reply.

With kindest regards, I am Yours very truly, E. F. McFADDIN

Mr. McFaddin was furnished C. C. Spragins, cashier of the Citizens National Bank, and Mr. Syd McMath, cashier of the First National Bank, a copy from the books of the Red Cross showing the name of each contributor and the amount contributed. Mr. Spragins and Mr. McMath have been asked to audit these figures and see that every person who made contribution received full credit for the amount contributed, and to see that the figures are in full balance. Any person desiring to see how his or her particular contribution appears is privileged to get the information from one or the other of the auditors. But due to the fact that each person contributed one-half of one day's pay and some people don't want anyone to know how much such pay amounts to, the information about the amount contributed will be given only to the person for his or her contribution.

Mr. McFaddin stated, "At the preliminary meeting where I was selected as the chairman of the drive, it was agreed that every penny of the money collected in this drive would be sent to the national headquarters, and not one penny retained for local disbursement, and so in good faith, I have kept that pledge and every penny received has been sent to the national headquarters. I hope that the Red Cross will promptly send us the supplies so that we may start our sewing room and our first aid course in this locality."

Are we nothing, then, we 133,000,000 Americans, who first flung the torch of liberty abroad in the world, and who have kept it burning for 150 years, building the while the goodliest way of living the world has ever seen? Are we nobody, that it is not asked abroad, "Is American free democracy going to dominate the world?"

Let us break the chains of this national inferiority complex. Let us cry to the world that we are free and democratic, and proud of it; that we believe it is the best way of life; that we believe others would be wise to follow it; that we propose to fight to preserve, and if necessary to extend it; that we look any post-war world squarely in the face, confident that what we have needs odds from nobody.

Let us so make war that all Latin America will say, yes, totalitarianism was mighty, but free democracy was mightier still, let us cleave to it; so that China may see how to build herself in like manner; so that Russia will say, we may keep socialism, but we want a free and democratic regime with personal liberty; so that all peoples may say, the United States has GOT something there, let's go and do likewise.

Let us quit cringing and waiting; let us bea ourselves like free men, in such a way that the world may be aware of us.

Hires Airplane and Finds Missing Tire

When he lost an outside dual tire from his truck en route here from the Black Hills, he drove to Spearfish and back a distance of 300 miles, in fruitless search. Then he chartered an airplane and made the trip again, and located the tire in a field near the highway.

land before the war was accused by its critics of advocating appeasement of Germany and a policy of inducing Hitler to forego any expansion to the west in return for a free hand in the east against Russia. Cliveden was the home of Lord and Lady Astor.

In his discussion of the Pearl Harbor reports, Mr. Roosevelt picked up a copy of Tuesday's Washington Evening Star and suggested it would be a good thing if the cartoon on the front page were circulated throughout the country.

It depicted Uncle Sam about to hang a milestone around the neck of a man who had backed "John Q. Public" into a corner and was telling him: "The British want to fight to the last American."

"Why have the Russians? They'll turn on us later."

"We ought to pull out of the Far East. We can't win there."

In the background was an excerpt from Winston Churchill's speech Sunday in which he said: "Whosoever is guilty of the crime of bringing about the death of him let it be said that it were better that a milestone were hung about his neck and that he were cast into the sea."

The type of person portrayed in the cartoon, Mr. Roosevelt remarked is in evidence in Washington. He said the cartoon was especially applicable to the national capital.

Wise Guy

A lieutenant was transferred to another post for gambling. "What do you bet on?" frowned the major.

"Oh, anything," replied the lieutenant, adding: "I'll bet you $20 you have a mole on your right shoulder."

Replied the major, nettled, "I'll take you on." Removing his shirt the major proved there was no blemish and collected the bet.

Elated, he wrote the lieutenant's former officer . . . "I have broken him of gambling."

Came a letter . . .

"Oh, yeah? He just got me for $100 . . . the lieutenant bet me he'd have your shirt off five minutes after he met you!" —Zolene Barnes.

Lincoln Strategy

"When Abraham Lincoln lived in Springfield, Ill., the fire brigade in that city wished to secure some badly needed supplies, and a lot of us youngsters were given a share in collecting the money," one of the "youngsters" relates.

"I went up to the rooms over the grocery and entered the law office of Lincoln. He asked me a lot of questions about the fire brigade, seeming quite interested.

"Then he said: 'Well, I'll give you what I'll do. I'll go home to supper—Mrs.
Lincoln is generally good-natured after supper—and I'll tell her I've been thinking of giving $50 to the fire brigade. And she'll say, 'Abe, will you never have any sense? Twenty dollars is quite enough.'"

"So tomorrow, my boy, you come around and get your $20."

"Which I did!"

Little Tommy had spent his first day at school. Mother was anxious to know how he had got on.

"What did you learn, dear?" she asked.

"Didn't learn nothin'," came the discouraging reply.

"Well, then, what did you do?"
mother persisted.

"Didn't do nothin'. A woman wanted to know how to spell 'dog' and I told her. 'That's all.'"

Perspect: "And what is the difference between last year's cars and the new models?"

Salesman: "Well, on last year's cars the noses pointed upward like they were smelling something; this year they point downward—like they found it."

Hope Basket Co. in 32nd Year

Established here over 31 years ago, the Hope Basket Company manufactures and distributors over the entire United States thousands of Fruit Packing Baskets each year.
Walter VerHulst, President.

The establishment of the Hope Basket Company here in 1911 marked an important step in the commercial and industrial development of Hope. It was a welcome addition to what is now a sizeable group of manufacturers and wholesale firms which make Hope the supply point for a large section of Arkansas. But of even greater importance is the fact that firms of this kind provide payrolls to be distributed in the city of their location—a ready market for raw materials produced in that section and add to the economic life of the entire community in which they are established. For these reasons the Hope Basket Co., is an institution of distinct value to the community.

This firm manufactures and sells thousands of fruit packing baskets each year. Thus they eliminate in the basket business, so far as this section is concerned, the senseless practice of shipping a raw product to some distant point where it is manufactured into a finished product and then shipped back, as in many cases, to the original district from which it came. Furthermore, their nationwide sales also bring thousands of dollars of outside money to Hope which would otherwise never find its way here.

For example, while only a small part of their production can be consumed locally yet the manufacturing costs of the entire output, as represented to a great extent by wages paid employees, is distributed here and ultimately re-enters local trade channels.

The executives and employees are all Hope people while the firm itself is a substantial contributor to city and county expenses through taxes on their plant.

The above are reasons for the important position this firm holds in the economic life of the community and why their continued patronage in it should be encouraged. Adv.

County Food Drive Recipe

Housewives Advised to Consult Nutrition

As a part of the Hempstead county Food-for-Victory campaign the following recipe is submitted for probable use by housewives:

Are you sure that the food served at your house supplies all the necessary food elements your family needs for health? Consult the Nutrition chart "Eat the Right Foods". Look for it in the grocery stores. It will help you plan well-balanced meals. This chart has been prepared by the National Nutrition Committee.

Milk should be the foundation of the diet as it is the most nearly perfect food. Fresh milk is the ideal form of milk especially for drinking. However for families who have to buy their milk, it is real economy to use evaporated or powdered milk in cooking. Remember you get the same food value for less money. Evaporated milk is just milk with about one-half the water removed, nothing has been removed or added. Try the following method of preparing rice, use as a simple dessert or as a basic recipe for more elaborate dishes. (Serves 6 or 8).

1 cup rice (uncooked).
6 cups hot milk, (or 3 cups hot water and 3 cups evaporated milk).
1 teaspoon salt.
Put in double boiler, cover it, and cook until rice is tender (about 1 hour). Stir frequently.
Add to it, 2 teaspoons butter or oleomargarine, 1/2 teaspoon of vanilla.
Serve Rice hot or cold with crushed or stewed fruit or with a combination of 4 tbs. sugar and 1 tbs. cinnamon.

Making Your Makeup Last

Advice on Saving Beauty Cosmetics for Duration

By BETTY CLARKE
AP Feature Service Writer

How to keep your face made-up longer is something of a teaser any time. But now when you're doing housework, war work and then some, you wish you really had a way to do it.

That's why I asked the pretty Cuban radio singer, Emma Otero, how she manages to look lovely in spite of rushing from rehearsal to broadcast and back again.

She says her secret is to apply powder first, then add a liquid powder base as a topper (instead of a base). By smoothing the foundation makeup over the powder, you get a clear and clean look minus a shine. And you thereby avoid cakey or spotty powdering.

Miss Otero insists her way wastes less time because it makes the makeup last longer. She uses no rouge, preferring the languid lipstick and excellent eye makeup. If she uses any rouge, she puts it lightly over her entire face (and she means lightly!) after the base application and wipes it off with tissue to leave a rosy tone but no red color.

You may prefer to put some extra powder also on top of the base but dust it on with a fluffy puff (nose, chin and forehead may need it especially). Try wiping it off lightly with tissue.

This is the time to be concerned with correct color. If you're not sure yours are right, next time you buy makeup consult a makeup specialist free at beauty salons or cosmetic counters.

And remember, as Miss Otero does, that diet often can do more for your skin—not necessarily a starvation diet but more balance to the food you're choosing.

Her suggestion for art in eye makeup is to put it on precisely almost eyelash by eyelash and to spread your eye shadow slowly and smoothly. Be sure to remove the surplus.

Where We Are Right Now

Harrison in Hollywood

By PAUL HARRISON, NEA Service Correspondent

Wise-Cracker Cracks an Unwise One

HOLLYWOOD—On or off stage, there's never an amicable in the rivalry of Hollywood's wise-cracking comedians, and it's an odd experience to sit with a group of them and study the tricks each one uses to try to gain the floor and dominate the conversation. They seldom laugh at each other's gags for the simple reason they don't pay attention; while one fellow is talking the rest are figuring on what they'll say as soon as they can get a word in edgewise.

It was at just such a session of laboring wits that Martin Greene heard one of the boys explaining his recent absence of a week. It seems that his father, a one-time stage figure, had died in New York. "We were all shocked," he said feelingly, "although we really had been expecting it. He was in bad health, and very old."

Immediately another comedian coming out of a spell of detached thinking, cut in loudly with, "If you think that's funny lemme tell you this one . . ."

Powdered Lothario
There's always a new laugh on any set where a certain brawny, humely actor is working. He has nothing but ego where his brains ought to be, and he'd jump off a skyscraper if a director assured him it'd land her on the screen. About a year ago, in fact, he very nearly drowned himself because the director incautiously told him: "The longer you stay under water the more dramatic it will be."

Soon after he came to Hollywood, this husky gent got a first delighted glimpse of himself in the wardrobe department's multiangled arrangement of full-length mirrors. The view pleased him so much that he took to dropping in almost every noon hour, striking poses and flexing his muscles while standing between the mirrors. His behavior so disturbed other players and the wardrobe staff that the studio bought him a set of the mirrors for his dressing room.

The newest yarn about this homely Narcissus concerns his role in a prize fight picture. He gets licked, but doesn't mind because the director assured him it'll be very dramatic. After the long shots of the action had been filmed, some close-up inserts were required showing his midriff being hammered by the opponent's fists. The actor didn't respond when called, and a frantic assistant director finally burst into his dressing room. The lug was standing there powdering his stomach.

What a Dime
On the same intellectual plane as this brawny hulk is a gentle, big-eyed little actress. This is the gal who a year or so ago cautioned her escort when arriving at a party: "Now don't drink anything except whiskey, darling; remember, you've got to drive home."

On a Sunday afternoon visit to Hugh Herbert's ranch some months ago, she expressed great admiration for the floral equarium which is a feature of the house because it's set into the floor of the living room. Recently she went out again with some friends and very nearly fell into a second pond which is almost exactly like the first except that it dominates the front lawn. "Oh!" she exclaimed, teetering on the brink and clutching for something to say. "They've moved the house inside!"

The 1940 census revealed that 86 new cities had passed the 10,000 mark in population.

HONOLULU—There hasn't been so much activity in Hawaii since they de-throned the last Hawaiian queen half a century ago.

At least, that's the opinion of the graybeards around town who have lived through 50 peaceful years here on a sleepy tropical island.

Honolulu, today, is a gangly, growing defense youngster in the throes of coming of age—nearly—as of December 7.

Palm-fringed streets are studded with sandbagged machine-gun nests, buildings are heavily barricaded and sentries challenge all persons who stroll outside at night.

During the day new soldiers are everywhere, just off transports, gawking like the tourists of a season ago.

Our favorite beaches are criss-crossed with barbed wire and pitted with gun emplacements.

Honolulu housewives gossip over back fences about the new island vegetables they are trying out because most mainland supplies are curtailed. There's a shortage, too, of candy, beef, oranges.

Honolulu businessmen are concerned with (a) how to get more gasoline ration tickets, (b) when liquor will be back in Hawaii (c) should par be raised on golf courses since the army fouled the fairways with barbed wire to prevent enemy planes from landing, (d) whether to pay that bomb shelter company $40 to dig the shelter or do the job themselves, (e) about oil liquor again.

Honolulu children aren't concerned about a thing. Schools are closed, for the present at least. Boy Scouts help keep waiting lines in order at civilian fingerprinting stations and Girl Scouts are folding bandages for the Red Cross and learning how to knit.

Crime Is on the Downbeat

Crime is down to its lowest level in years in a blacked-out town that goes to bed with the chickens and gets up with the dawn patrol. And, there hasn't been a hangover since December 7.

The cry, "Remember Pearl Harbor" has gained significance that will probably out-shout slogans of the past. Local newspapers and radio stations blast out the phrase daily, restaurants print it on their menus, sailors sing it, soldiers speak it and hundreds emboss it on their letterheads.

We double up in autos for rides to work, for gas is rationed at only 10 gallons a month.

At grocery stores our favorite store-keeper apologizes.

"Sorry, but you can only buy two of each article . . . military orders . . . no hoarding."

And, thus, carefully worked out budgets are shot to pieces.

The little American-born Japanese maids who work for us are sheepish. A typical statement is: "Me sorry. No can help being Japanese. Me American. Me not savvy this kind Japanese. He kill everybody."

Even our pets are up against it . . . no fish tidbits for tabby . . . save food for humans . . . the Civilian Defense Council issues the orders.

The blackout nights will last for the duration of the war. Where most residents have built Hawaiian-type houses with open windows and lanais (porches) that virtually brought the gardens into their homes, blackout paint and tarpaper have obliterated the views.

The lucky officials who can use their autos at night, drive in the wake of two pin points of light shining blue through two-inch slits in the headlights.

The gay blades-about-town are in uniform now and our favorite hula chorus are working in defense offices. The shirt that once rang curfew from Aloha Tower in the city, now waits silently to signal air-raid alarms.

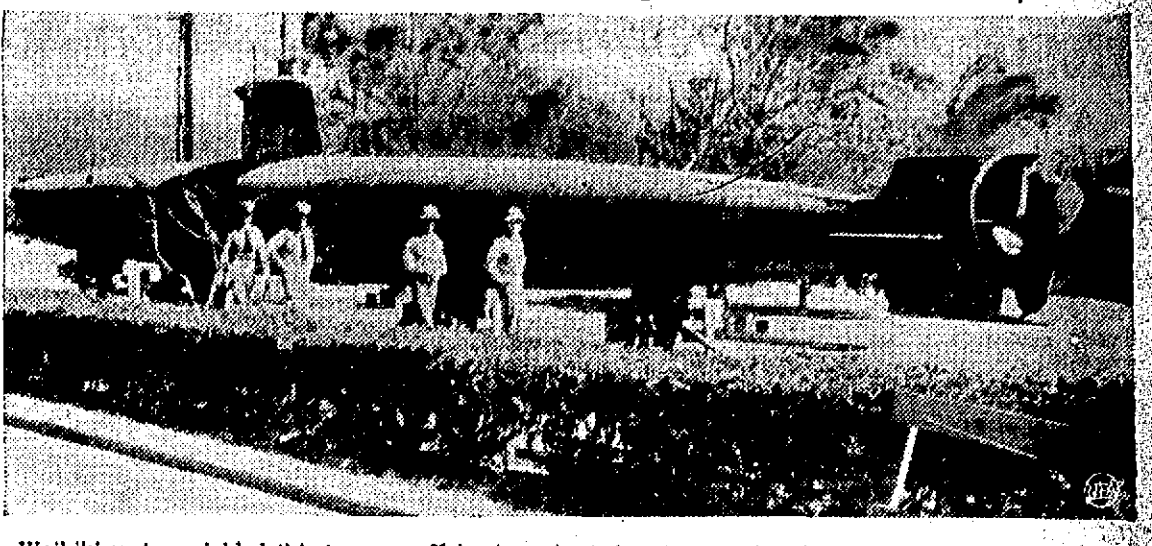

As you walk the streets, you subconsciously note arrows pointed at the corners. They point to first-aid shelters where staffs are on duty 24 hours a day. And everyone becomes nervous when a hum of planes is heard overhead or when a nervous crack of machine-gun fire burks through the darkness as soldiers practice.

Sentries really mean it, too when they yell, "Halt!" and keep a finger curled over the trigger. You're careful and so is everybody else.

Not all the soldiers you see are in smart new uniforms. From all of the eight islands in the Hawaiian group are coming laughing youngsters to train for the Hawaiian Territorial Guard. Because uniforms are still scarce, you see them frequently in khaki shirts, civvy trousers and white sports shoes.

One of the fiercest "battles" of the Waikiki waters yielded this two-man U-boat, part of Jap trap at Pearl Harbor. Cargo of "sulcide sub," captured before it could do dirty work: two torpedo tubes.

Let Children Play at Battle

May Prepare Them Mentally of Dangers of Warfare

By DOROTHY ROE

AP Feature Service Writer

If your children like to play war games, with realistic looking tanks and planes and guns don't try to stop them.

The make-believe war may prepare them mentally for the dangers of actual warfare, and an air raid may seem just a more exciting form of a family game.

This is the advice of officials of the Child Study Association of America, now devoting a concentrated program to the training of parents in the best means of protecting their children from "war nerves."

Fright Psychosis

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt advises parents to teach small children to make games of bombing raids, to protect the against a fright psychosis.

She tells of her 2-year-old grandson Haven Roosevelt, son of Ensign war was fought "somewhere on Oahu" by a force of 100 civilian soldiers hurled into an all-out fight against an enemy of the U. S. armed forces.

The army claimed a crushing victory after 8 hours of furious assault. Their enemy: a giant kiawe (algaroba) forest which the army needed cleared for undisclosed military purposes.

If you came here you would find the Royal Hawaiian Hotel, luxurious pink palace erected on the Kaikiki beachfront in 1928 at a cost of $4,000,000, hasn't sponsored a public dance since December 6. It's a recreation resort now for officers off duty. Then, too, the declaration of war scuttled Hawaii's third-largest "industry"—the tourist trade.

Besides regular shortages, you have others to cope with when you go shopping. To get many commonplace drugs, like aspirin, you practically need a priority rating. Gasoline I've mentioned. But you take a chance on getting a taxi. Drivers actually refuse a trip if they think it will use too much of their value quota.

Flashlights are practically priceless. One of the town's richer men, telephoned to his wife on the mainland before Christmas, asked for a dozen batteries as the finest possible gift he could receive. It's hard, too, to get a sufficient amount of blackout materials. The result: lights out.

Dan Cupid Is Doing O. K.

Dan Cupid is doing fine, even if the rush has slowed. At one ceremony, the prospective bridegroom had only two hours leave. He phoned his fiancée, told her to meet him at the church. In haste she picked some hibiscus flowers from a hedge for a bouquet. The wedding over, the bridegroom hustled back to his ship at Pearl Harbor, the bride to her lonely apartment for a wedding supper of graham crackers and milk.

Here in Honolulu, more than 50 Shinto shrines, in thickly populated Japanese sections have continued to operate, despite the fact this is the religion of the Rising Sun.

There's seldom a dull moment in Honolulu's provost court. Recently six men caught in a gambling raid were required to turn their fines over to the Red Cross.

Fourteen loiterers were sentenced to 30 days of digging bomb shelters and filling sandbags. Two speeders, facing the alternative of losing their licenses or donating blood at Tripler Hospital, happily reported to the doctors.

All in all, though, it's not bad seeing the sunrise each morning and sleeping without the disturbing roar of traffic. It's certainly not boring.

Western Auto Store, Home Owned

Under its present ownership for a that of a smaller merchandiser in this field.

The Western Auto Associate Store offers many items you might need in the automotive or accessory line as well as other merchandise. Davis tires, Wizard batteries, Wizard washing machines, Truetone radios, bicycles, sporting goods, garden tools and others are important among these and in each department these articles may be had in several price classes.

As stated above, the Western Auto Associate Store is home owned with the result that the money remains here. They invite you to visit them when shopping for anything in any of the above lines, in the belief that they can more nearly satisfy you, not only in merchandise and price, but also in courtesy, convenience and all other elements, that make for pleasant trade relations. On Monday of this week Mr. Jones observed his first anniversary as the owner. He takes this opportunity to express appreciation for your business in this past year and to invite your continued patronage in the future.

Sommerville Produce, Hope Leader

Established here 10 years ago and finest of fresh fruits and vegetables available without regard to the time of year and distance from source of production.

They are constantly in touch with the fresh fruit and vegetable market as well as the centers of production, and they buy the finest of fresh fruits and vegetables. These are then marketed in grocery stores in the same fresh condition in which they come from the refrigerated truck or car.

This firm is ready on short notice to serve local merchants, provide a payroll spent locally and, through taxes, contribute substantially to city and county expenses. The wandering or itinerant fruit and vegetable peddler does none of these things mentioned above, their products are often of an inferior quality.

Because of the above mentioned facts, Sommerville Produce Company is a valuable asset to the economic life of this community and their continued participation in it should be encouraged. They take this occasion to express appreciation for past business and to invite a continuance of your patronage in the future.

In the past ten years medical science has found that fresh fruits and vegetables are rich sources of nearly every vitamin now recognized as being essential to good health. Because of the wide publicity these facts have been given and the comparative ease with which one can now obtain fresh fruits or vegetables at almost any season of the year, there has been a large increase in their consumption.

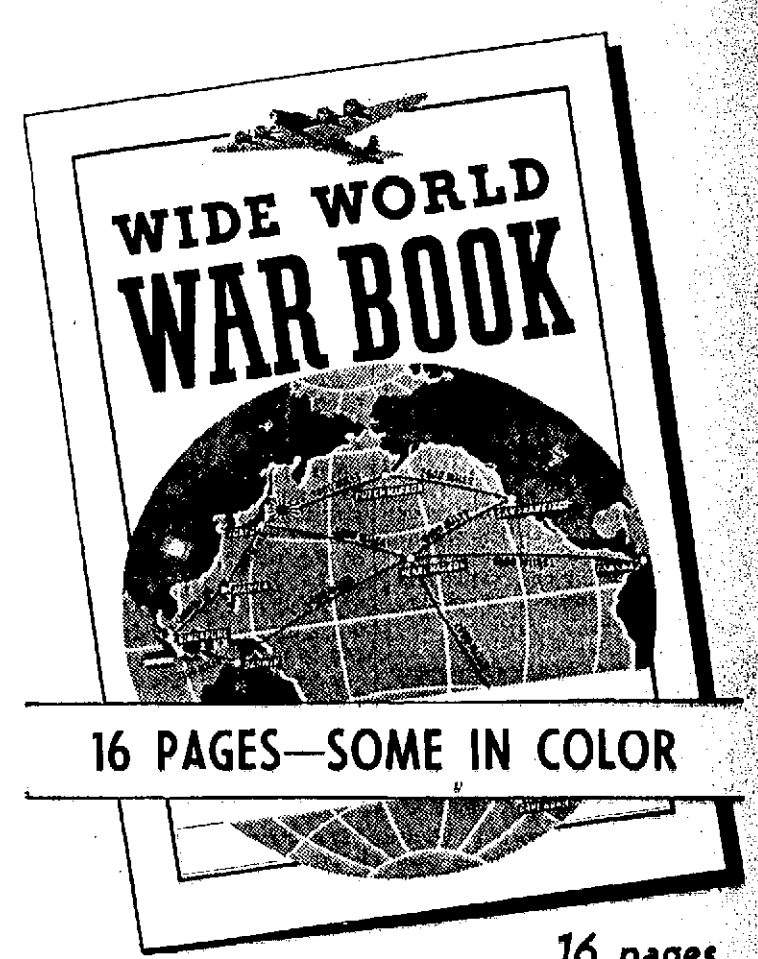

In this connection the ease with which local people can obtain these essentials to the well balanced menu, is made possible largely through Sommerville Produce Co.

This firm has liberated local people from the restrictions of season and location as they make the world's

Byers Abstract Co. in 10th Year

Established in 1932, the Byers Abstract Company has available a complete set of records of Hempstead county property and with these facilities they can make an abstract of title to any piece of property in the county in a short time. These complete records plus their years of experience is your assurance that the title to your property is as shown by any abstract which they compile.

Hempstead county people who may solicit a federal farm loan or one under the Federal Housing Authority Act will find this service of especial value since a clear title and up-to-date abstract is required on all property on which federal loans are granted. The business policy of the Byers Abstract Company is one of courtesy and convenience to their customers and the business they have built up in their years of service is a testimonial to the accuracy and efficiency they employ in solving your title problems. They take this opportunity to express appreciation for your business in the year of 1941 and to invite your continued patronage during 1942.
